Excerpt: . religion must have a moral origin, so far at least that the evidence of its doctrines cannot, like the truths of abstract science, be wholly independent of the will: 78 that religion is designed to improve the nature and faculties of man, and that every part of religion is to be judged by its relation to this main end. 79 These maxims he insisted on during his whole course as a religious writer; they plainly had a deep hold on his mind, and were uttered by him, not with the lip only, as if learned from others, but as if they had indeed been drawn from the fountain-head of genuine self-research. If he then tried a religious creed with reference to logical and technical precision, and not in respect to its moral rests in the Moral Being of Man. cli 7 See the Quarterly Review for December, 1841, pp. 11-12.
